General Motors will end production of its gasoline-powered Chevrolet Malibu car later this year in order to produce new electric vehicles.

GM has sold more than 10 million Malibus since 1964 worldwide and will end production in November. The Detroit automaker is investing $390 million at its Kansas assembly plant to build next-generation Chevrolet Bolt EVs.

Warren Buffett has mixed feelings about artificial intelligence.

Buffett, arguably the most successful stock market investor in history, is well-known for his persistent bullish long-term view of the US economy and stock market. But he's no stranger to expressing caution on matters with significant downside risks — especially in regards to technology.
